2. (a) Read the following passage and answer the questions given below : 5

A list of articles lost by railway travellers and now on sale at a great London station has been published, and many people who read it have been astonished at the absentmindedness of their fellows. If statistical records were available on the subject, however, I doubt whether it would be found that absentmindedness is common. It is the efficiency rather than the inefficiency of human meaning that compels my wonder. Modern man remembers even the telephone numbers, the addresses of friends, dates of good vintage appointments for lunch and dinner. His memory is crowded with the names of actors and actresses and cricketers, footballers and murderers. He can tell you what the weather was like in a long past August, and the name of provincial hotel where he had meals during the last summer, he remembers almost everything that he is expected to remember.
